The Beach as a Liminal Space - WordPress.com

For example, in Alex Garland's (1997) novel The Beach, the main character, Richard, endures the dangers of both land and sea to find a secret and secluded beach community living a supposedly utopian existence on a remote island off the coast of Thailand. Initially the ambience of the beach meets their expectations. In seemingly timeless space

Journey's End: Conrad as Revenant in Alex Garland's The Beach

The Beach, Alex Garland's 1996 cult novel about Generation X back-packers in Thailand, is my case in point. Conrad is both present and absent in Garland's narrative. He is present as a literary model and absent, or diminished, as a cultural figure. He is both ghost and revenant: he is a ghost behind the novel's setting and cultural ideas, and

What happened on 'The Beach'

Beach, which was made in Thailand during 1998-1999. The film, which starred Leonardo Di Caprio, and was based on Alex Garland's sensationalist novel about backpackers and drugs, raised the concern of local environmentalists because it was allowed to be made in two national parks in contravention of laws governing economic activities in parks.
